WE NOMINATE

Jesse William Markham, a tough-liberated economist of what might be termed the "conservative school" and on the threshold of his second decade as a full-time Princetonian, who this week made news on the nation's financial pages. On the same morning the Census Bureau jolted planners everywhere with the statistics that more automobiles, (7,340,000) than people (1,167,000) are born in the United States each year. The Ford Foundation (without regard for automobile economics) announced that the 47-year old Markham will spearhead an inter-university research program on the "economics of technological change and economic growth."

While in the post-World War II era the significance of technological change as a basic determinant in a nation's rate and direction of economic growth has become increasingly apparent, the $150,000, three-year grant extended to Markham and associates at a half-dozen universities (Chicago, Carnegie Tech, Harvard, Minnesota and Yale as well as Princeton) will be the first major analysis of the factors determining technological change itself. Without discounting the inventive activity of government and non-profit institutions, and as has often been the case with Markham's researches, the private sector of the American economy will be the area of principal concern.

Formerly Chief Economist of Federal Trade Commission, and currently serving as a member of Governor Richard J. Hughes' long-working "milk study committee", Markham brings to this newly announced undertaking a solidly pegged reputation as an authority on price policy and theory whose primary interests include measurement of the degree of competition existing in various industries. His high standing in the "profession of economics" has been accentuated in recent years by assignments as Visiting Professor at Harvard and Columbia and a year in Switzerland (1958-59) as a Ford Foundation Research Professor.

This past spring, appearing in Washington before the Anti-Trust Subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee as an expert witness for the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the outspoken Markham (who opposes the proposed New York Central Pennsylvania Railroad merger) stated that there is very little the government can or should do about newspaper mergers. To the consternation of some observers, and with characteristic candor, he went on to say that the onerous that fewer newspapers by throttling competition have seriously threatened the dissemination of news are grossly exaggerated.

Richmond-born, a Phi Beta Kappa member of the Class of 1911 at the University of Richmond, and a sea-going Naval veteran of World War II, Markham earned his advanced degrees at Harvard and served for five years on the faculty of Vanderbilt University prior to arriving here in 1953. For six years a United States Delegate to the Organization for European Economic Cooperation and its Experts' Committee on Restrictive Business Practices, Markham has been a consultant to the Federal Communications Commission, the Brookings Institution, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, and has been closely affiliated with George Washington University's Patent, Trademark and Copyright Foundation.

For seeking to plug gaps in our understanding of the operative mechanics of our economic system; for his capacities for translating into layman's language extremely difficult economic concepts; for blueprinting a research venture which will draw representatives from both industry and higher education; we nominate him

... AFTER ONE YEAR

At Princeton High. "I know it's the usual and expected thing to say, but I must say it because I mean it: the cooperation I've had so far from faculty, students and townspeople has been fine." That is the warm and sincere reaction of Princeton High School principal Kenneth E. Michael to his first year on the job.

Mr. Michael, who talks about the school and his work there with directness, enthusiasm and candor, laced with an easy good humor, continued: "The faculty has been wonderful in its willingness to try new methods whereby we can make the best use of teaching personnel."

In public school education across the country, there has been the established idea up to now that teachers should be rigidly confined to teaching five classes each, five hours a week. "On the face of

"... AND THIS MEASURES THE AREA OF A CIRCLE." High School principal Kenneth E. Michael describes some of the mysteries of geometry to a freshman. it, this assumption is not valid," Mr. Michael points out.

"Some teachers can and would like to teach more, some of them are more effective with fewer assigned hours in the classroom. This situation varies by individual teachers and by the subject being taught."

Flexibility and Ability. Mr. Michael says that the faculty at Princeton High School has shown great adaptability in going along with the idea that the school should be flexible rather than fixed in its approach to education. One teacher, for instance, has asked for approval to divide one of his classes into two sections of 14 each rather than keep it at one group of 28.

"His request was based solely on his firm conviction that he can do more with two small groups than he can with a single larger one," said Mr. Michael. "The arrangement, of course, will exactly double his teaching hours for that subject, but his eagerness to try it is a typical example of the way Princeton High School faculty members put their jobs ahead of themselves."

Two of Mr. Michael's goals as principal of the school are "to ignite the educational spark in the large group of average students" and "to have as few school rules as possible."

He points out, in connection with the first, that the primary purpose of education is not to quench or subdue or browbeat but instead, in some manner, to preserve and nurture the native inquisitiveness and imagination of the young so that they will lead, as adults, richer and fuller lives.

Education Is Everything. The past has shown that equality of opportunity comes mainly from equality in education. Take away education, and you have taken away everything. Give it, freely and fairly, and you have given all.

As Mr. Michael well realizes, there is clearly more interest in education today than ever before. Criticism and suggestions come from all directions — which is as it should be. Yet it is also no surprise that much of the advice is contradictory and confusing.

lem of today is so unprecedented that, in Mr. Michael's opinion, there are few of yesterday's tenets which now apply in school teaching. What he is sure of is that, each one of the school's 1500-plus students has a future. He sees it as the school's job to help every one of them prepare for this future.

Mr. Michael adds, "One way in which we are trying to ignite this spark in the average student is through more personal help and stimulation. The low-ranking students get our attention because they badly need it. The top students get it because they richly deserve it."

The Forgotten Middle Group. It is the large middle group which, according to Mr. Michael, tends to drift around in limbo. "They are the ones who need more attention, and they are now starting to get that assistance, mainly through our Guidance Department counselors," he says.

"While it is true that many high school students never operate at full throttle, it's up to the school to stimulate the student to put out his best effort and to find and help him develop his latent talents," he says.

He feels strongly that a student who is working far below his capabilities can never be happy. This is true whether the poor achievement comes from lack of interest, lack of application or both.

"Our objective at Princeton High School," Mr. Michael says, "is to do our best to see that every student attains a measure of success in some field of endeavor. If we can do that, our purpose is fulfilled. If we can't, we have somehow failed."

New Schedule, New Scope. One way by which he hopes that this goal will be reached is through the change in the school schedule starting this September. The last class for

Spook House Opens
 Two Madison Street businessmen, William Spud Guthrie 10½, and Leo Orsi, 12, have opened a "Spook House" in the cellar of Spud's home, at 15 Madison. The hours are 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Admission is five cents. The Spook House, which attracted eight customers at Monday's opening, features running ghosts, monsters, a bloody hand and a dead man with a knife in him. Posters advertising "Be Prepared to Get Seared" have been placed on telephone poles, in Davidson's store and with the candy man. Plans call for closing the Spook House after this Friday until the end of August when Spud will be back from his vacation. The chamber of horrors will then be open week nights up to and including Halloween. The proprietors will use the funds raised by admission to buy the makings of more spooks.

 the day will end at 2:50 p.m. and the time between then and the 3:30 p.m. departure of buses will make available to students a broader scope of involvement in the school than has been possible here to fore. The time can be used for such academic activities as reading improvement, student-teacher conferences and voluntary assemblies with special programs and speakers. The hope here is to offer students enough extra so that they, in turn, will return a little extra themselves. This will also help, Mr. Michael feels, to develop a greater feeling of school pride, the only quality which he now finds disappointingly rare among students at the school. "By 'school pride' I don't mean 'school spirit,'" he explains. "It's a sense of pride in what the school is and what it has to offer. A feeling of mutual high regard between school and student." Education is never a one-way street. Mr. Michael avered. Pride in Princeton High School would mean that a student, realizing how much the school has to give him, would both want and try to give something back.

Payable with interest. What can a student give back? "Something in the way of a little extra effort and interest," Mr. Michael says. "This can't and shouldn't be done by demand or discipline. It has to come as a spontaneous reaction by the student to an instinctive sense of pride and affection for the school and what it means to him."

As a way to instill this feeling in newcomers, every ninth grader this fall will be assigned to an upperclassman who will serve as a guide and student adviser before the opening of school and during the first few weeks. The idea is to make the new students feel at home and a part of Princeton High School right from the start.

On the subject of rules, Mr. Michael feels that the fewer there have to be, the better it is for all concerned. There should be as little rigid regimentation as possible, he says, adding that he is really in favor of some "change for change's sake" to offset the dangers of monotony.

Obviously there have to be some rules, but not just for the purpose of having them. And they should be constructive and not confining ones, Mr. Michael asserts.

The Age of Changeover. The high school years are admittedly among the most difficult during the arduous period of maturing. People refer to a "well-disciplined child" as one who obeys orders quickly and without questions. A "well-disciplined adult," on the other hand, is one who is capable of disciplining himself.

The transition between the two forms of discipline begins with and extends through the four years of high school. For that reason Mr. Michael views school rules as a necessary guide to conduct, but he also feels that, as students show themselves willing and able to accept responsibility, the need

It's eminently clear that Mr. Michael likes Princeton and his first year at Princeton High School. It's also obvious that Princeton and Princeton High School like Mr. Michael and thoroughly admire his intelligent, knowledgeable approach to his chosen field of secondary school education.

TWO TEEN-AGERS SAVED

By Princeton Resident, Dr. Peter A. DeMauro Jr. of 630 Prospect Avenue Ext., a Princeton dentist and member of the Princeton Hospital medical and dental staff, has been credited with saving two teenage boys from almost certain drowning in the Atlantic Ocean Saturday night.

Spending the weekend with his family at Harvey Cedars, at the Jersey shore, Dr. DeMauro was sitting on the porch of his summer cottage with friends around 11 p.m., when they heard cries for help coming from off-shore. Rushing to the water's edge, they found two boys who had managed to swim to shore, but learned that two others, one a non-swimmer, were still somewhere out in the dark water.

Dr. DeMauro stripped down to his Bermuda shorts and started swimming in the direction of the cries for help, pulling a canvas raft after him. At one point, he was on the verge of giving up because the boys' calls had stopped and he could see nothing in the pitch dark.

Finally able to locate the boys, who had renewed their cries, Dr. DeMauro put the non-swimmer on the raft and told the other to hold on. In this manner, he pulled both boys quite a distance into shore.

The boy who could not swim was in a mild state of shock and was given necessary medical attention by a first aid unit. The four youths, all from Philadelphia, said they had decided to take a late swim before returning home. They had reached a sand bar off shore, but were swept off it when the tide came rolling in.

Bypass Funds Approved

Two million dollars for engineering and right-of-way acquisition for Route 92, the so-called "Princeton Bypass," were approved this week by Gov. Richard J. Hughes.

The sum was included in a gigantic $205 million highway construction program, largest in the State's history. Estimated to cost more than $14 million, the bypass will run from Route 206, northwest of Rocky Hill, past Kingston and Plainsboro to Route 33 east of Hightstown.

Still to be determined is the exact course of the freeway. It was hotly debated last summer by officials from half a dozen affected municipalities and representatives of Princeton University, with no firm decision yet reached by the Highway Department.

KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Air Collision Fatal. A 45-year old employee of Western Electric's Engineering Research Center on Carter Road in Hopewell Township was one of three men who died Tuesday when two planes collided over Allentown, Pa.

The dead were Fred W. Turner of RD 4, Flemington, employed by Western Electric, and two U.S. Army officers, stationed at the War College in Carlisle, Pa. They were Maj. John R. Beler, 40, and Capt. Henry F.C. Gebelt, 35.

Witnesses said the planes collided in mid-air over a cornfield, one of them exploding almost immediately. Wreckage was strewn over a mile-square area.

LARGER FINES ASKED

For Minors Buying Liquor. Borough Council may consider adoption of an ordinance which will strike much harder against minors convicted of purchasing alcoholic beverages.

The possibility developed in the wake of a 15-day closing of Cousins Co. Palmer Square liquor store, following its plea of inadvertent sale to a 17-year old youth. Under existing State law, the maximum penalty for such an offense is a $50 fine, whereas the store convicted of the sale is normally closed for a period of five to 20 days, resulting in the loss of hundreds of dollars in gross sales and possible hardship on its employees.

Actually, in the case of the minor who admitted having bought a quart and a pint of liquor from Cousins, his age of 17 will prevent his being formally charged and coming before Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr. His offense will be considered by Juvenile Referee Howard W. Stepp.

Mr. Stepp said this week that all of the facts in the case had not been brought to his attention, but that he considers purchase of liquor by minors and the deceit it involves "extremely serious. It's a form of cheating which may be practiced throughout a lifetime if not corrected immediately," he commented.

The juvenile who is at fault in this instance was also upbraided by Mayor Henry S. Patterson at the hearing in Borough Hall. He was told that while his action precipitated the violation, the penalty was far heavier on Cousins Co. and its employees and their families.

In this connection, Bruce H. French, attorney for Cousins Co., said: "Continued on Page 4" has provided the Borough governing body with copies of an ordinance enacted in Wildwood, where the purchase of alcoholic beverages by minors has run to far greater proportions. Reports are that following passage of a law by that municipality calling for a maximum fine of $500, violations of this nature by minors came to a prompt end.

Cousins' district took effect on Monday of this week, with five days of the original 20-day sentence required for the plea of non-vol. To clarify a statement made last week in TOWN TOPICS, it was the second time in 18 months that such a violation involving this store has occurred. A third such charge was dismissed.

TWO CHILDREN KILLED
Driver Apprehended. Ernest McLean, 37, of Monmouth Mobile Trailer Homes, South Brunswick, has been charged with the hit-and-run deaths of two small children last Saturday.
Killed were Dixie Lee Silke, 12, of 58 Ashley Road, Nixon, and Stephen Turuk, 10, of Old George's Road, Monmouth Junction.

A blood-stained windshield wiper found near the bodies of the children reportedly provided township and state police with a clue. They said that McLean was found shortly after a search was made of every car in the neighborhood.

The two children had been riding bicycles on Old George's Road when the accident occurred. They were dead on arrival at St. Peter's Hospital in New Brunswick.
McLean was arraigned on two counts of causing death by auto and received summonses for leaving the scene of an accident and driving under the influence of alcohol. He was released under $1,500 bail.

GROUPING DEBATED
Schools' Policy Questioned. In spite of the heat, a near-capacity crowd of parents turned out Thursday evening to quiz the Township Board of Education on "ability grouping."
"There are children who have been hurt by the policy. I don't know how many," said Mrs. Edward Meservy, one of the organizers of the parents. "Personally, I approve of the policy, but the problem is to find out what are the unintended side effects."

Simon Moss of the State Department of Labor and former teacher in the High School and Witherspoon School expressed concern for the Negro students, most of whom attend Community Park and Johnson Park Schools.

"We have determined," he said, "that, racially, the greater majority of the non-white children are grouped in the lowest groups. We have also determined that the poorest teachers are teaching the lowest groups." He asked the board if these situations exist in Princeton.

"Help the Children Grow." Mrs. Lillian B. Tenney declared, "It is the school's responsibility to provide the kind of experience and opportunities which will help these children grow. This is one area in which the school board can help."
"It is what these children are given in these early years that has great bearing upon what happens to them. . . . Have we given enough consideration to the type of teachers who are teaching these early grades?"

Robert Sinkler commented, "It is defeatist to know that I sit home, believing my child will go to college, while you in your perspective have got him weeded before he gets to high school. . . . He may make some small college or junior college."

Remedial reading has been tried for years and hasn't succeeded," said a woman in the audience. "The children were separated, and now you have the problem we are talking about." She suggested that the board appropriate funds to study the program.

Surest thing you know

July was a month for sudden showers, to the sorrow of picnickers, but they did serve to break the drought and end the hot spells, even if briefly.
Showers may be a part of the picture the next two days, but they'll be quick and light if they occur at all Thursday or Friday. As for the weekend, the Man thinks he finally has a clear one on the way.

Mrs. T. Roba Webb said, "We ought to be very sure that all children in Princeton have the same chance. This is not a peripheral issue. . . . Let's keep this alive!"

The parents also asked for details on "team teaching," the enrichment program, suggested that the board take an "ability census, and questioned the skills of the teachers handling the middle-ability groups.

School Board Replies. School Board President Richard Pearson and Dr. John J. McKenna, superintendent of schools, explained the school system's point of view. Other board members on hand were Mrs. Dorothy Shoch, Mrs. Jess Epstein, Leonard M. Hymenling, Donald Riddle, George Grace and Norman Anderson, board secretary.

"We do have an ability census," Mr. Pearson said. "What we don't have is the relationship between these statistics and statistics which indicate some degree of deprivation."

He added that "youngsters coming out of the lower socioeconomic groups are, by and large, not as able to do the school work as those from middle and upper groups."

"There is some question as to how much the public school can do (with situations which exist long before the child enters kindergarten). . . . I'd be willing to bet my bottom dollar that children coming from that kind of background, and going to Princeton schools, are a lot better off than those going to schools in Philadelphia, New York or Boston." He said that the school board would welcome suggestions.

Mr. Pearson added, "By seventh and eighth grades, we do

Cory S. Kammiller

Our friend told us we must depend principally on archaeological discoveries and interpretations for our information on ancient subjects because, curiously, all understanding of cuneiform writing and chiseling in rock was totally lost from the first century B. C. to the seventeenth century A. D. During these seventeen hundred years anyone who found their tablets didn't know they had any meaning. Then too, archaeology, or the excavation and study of people of remote times didn't begin even in a small way until the sixteen hundreds, and it took another three hundred years for it to develop fully, and to make significant records. We are told that the Babylonian cuneiform was in use more than 3000 years before some of the important found tablets were ever written. If, in the remote future, they write about our civilization they will undoubtedly give much attention to the automobile, and record that it was both a blessing and a big headache to many people. It is our mission in life to provide you with a car that will be a BLESSING, and to keep it that way for you. To this end we are sincerely dedicated. separate the youngsters who show promise of going to college." Dr. McKenna explained that this grouping is done by 1) recommendation of the sixth grade teacher; 2) the child's marks in sixth grade; 3) Iowa tests taken during grades 4, 5 and 6; and 4) at least two mental ability tests. "Johnny who is in the 99 percentile in arithmetic is marked for a class in accelerated math. If he's in the 40 percentile in something else, we schedule him for remedial work. If he's in the 99 percentile across the board, he goes into as many accelerated groups as we can schedule."

He told the parents, "Suppose a child can clear a five-

Question of the Week

Question: Do you feel this country would benefit by having a man as conservative as Barry Goldwater as president?

Were asked: Palmer Square

Albert Einstein, Jr., 47 N. Tulane Street, Frick Chemical Lab employee. No, I don't. I wouldn't think his foreign policy leaves much room for peaceful co-existence. He'd have us in war too quickly.

Edward Ambinder, 47 N. Tulane Street, Frick Chemical Lab employee, Princeton University senior. I would agree his foreign policy is unsatisfactory. In domestic policy, Mr. Goldwater seems to be too much of a states rightist for me. I'm satisfied with President Kennedy right now.

Richard Thomas, 69 Valley Road, Methodist chaplain, Princeton University. No, because I think Goldwater's basic philosophy is backward-looking, quite unsuited to meet the demands of a contemporary society with its problems of industrial growth and automation. I think his stand is wholly inadequate even to begin to meet the demands of the civil rights issue. I appreciate the necessity in a democracy to hear the political opinion of both the right and the left, but I don't think, at this time, the Goldwater philosophy is sharp enough to lead the country toward a program leaning toward the right. Taking Goldwater on his own ground, I don't think, even here, his program is sharp enough. It's too backward-looking. I think the Republicans are very hard-pressed for an acceptable candidate. I think if I had to choose between Goldwater and Rockefeller, I'd choose Rockefeller but I'm not sure either could win an election.

Miss Ruth VanDoren, 118lighthouse, information officer, Woodrow Wilson fellowship program. No, I don't believe the times call for conservatism. I feel our country is being frightfully conservative in all too many ways. This is reflected in our being over-protective toward our children, for seeking security no matter what the cost. I think this country needs a little more daring, a more realistic outlook.

Joseph L. Delafield, 39 Wilson Road, owner of Culligan-Nassau Water Conditioning Co. No, I do not. I think extreme conservatism is just as bad as extreme liberalism. And an extremely conservative president could force the people to take sides rather than to think questions out on the basis of their merit.

Alex DeSantis, 35 Linden Lane, graduate student, English. No. If he is as strong a conservative as he's made out to be, then I wouldn't vote for him because, to me, conservatism represents too much of an exclusive extreme.

Miss Jean Libensperger, 35 Trenton, secretary for the Gallop Organization. Yes, because I think it would be nice to have a man in there who you know will be trying at least to change the status quo. But, I think if he were elected, Goldwater would clash head-on with the built-in checks and balances of a democracy and the views of the previous administration. From the results of our field work, I can say that Goldwater's popularity has increased measurably since Rockefeller's re-marriage. Therefore, I feel he has a much better chance of attaining the Republican presidential nomination. As far as his running against Kennedy, Kennedy probably has a much better chance of getting re-elected.

Ernest Avellar, California, teacher, attending the Princeton University Language Institute. No, I don't. He's too conservative. We have to have men of action. Goldwater is too provincial. He's closed in by all those mountains and I think it affects his personality. He doesn't read anything except Time magazine and John Birch pamphlets.

Ross Filion, 226 King Street, graduate student, psychology. No, I don't believe that Goldwater's attempt to minimize the role of the federal government in this day and age is realistic. That's my main beef against him.

Mrs. Isabelle Pingree, Institute for Advanced Study, housewife. No, I think the temper of the times warrants a more liberal form of government than the one Barry Goldwater seems to advocate.

Mrs. Suzanne B. Johnston, Griggstown, film writer. No, I think the Goldwater supporters and the Goldwater platform would set us back. I have a strong concern, right now, that opportunistic and sectional forces might ally themselves in support of Goldwater and that his so-called conservatism does not really represent a constructive program.

Hermann Meusel, Brunswick Pike, senior technician, Accelerator. No. Under the present circumstances, I don't feel Goldwater would be the right man, as far as foreign policy is concerned. I feel President Kennedy's way of handling foreign policy, so far, has kept everything at a steady level, in spite of some opposition within his own party. I feel Goldwater would stir things up. I don't think foreign nations look too kindly on Goldwater. I see it this way: Being a German by birth myself, I see Goldwater more as a military man, not quite like Eisenhower but he might fall into the same line. Kennedy has made some boo-boos here and there, but, generally, I would say people who are interested in our foreign operations would not take to a too aggressive man like Goldwater.

News Of The THEATRES

Donovan's Reef (through Tuesday) is a kind of Occidentaler, a horse latitudes horse opera, which is both fun and funny and awash with enough action and non-Marquis-of-Queensbury fist-throwing to jiggle the pulse of the most heat-enervated Princetonian. Go see it; you'll find the free-swinging hoopla on the mythical South Pacific Isle of Haleakolohia good escapism therapy for that steamed clam feeling.

Mr. Himself, Guns Donovan, is John Wayne, equally at home in yachting cap and levis as he usually is in chaps and six-shooter. Mr. Wayne busies himself with his customary diversions — rum, romance and earnestly slugging his buddy Lee Marvin (Boats Gilhooley, that is).

Directed and produced by John Ford, undoubtedly tongue-in-cheek and talent-in-check, "Reef" tells the story of ex-sailor Donovan's hit-and-miss existence as the proprietor of a tropic saloon near a tropic lagoon, a real estate investment he made after World War II. Donovan kills hard, particularly with a left cross, and the misses are domestic, imported and complaisant.

Obviously, Donovan's approach to life in the South Seas has all the intellectual merit of skinny-dipping. But it does contain humor and pace, qualities which make for good cinema and which are all-too-seldom available to the movie-goer.

In addition to the full measure of amour displayed by the various female Haleakolohians for Mr. Wayne's benefit, the cast includes Dorothy Lamour in her usual airy working costume of custom-fitted sarong. The lady's contribution to the story is as slight as her outfit, but she obviously ages gracefully.

Despite the uncomplicated story and the breezily unbelievable fantasy, the end result is both forceful and diverting. "Donovan's Reef" is not bad at all. More than that, it's good, clean, bumptious fun, and just the kind of movie we need to help us forget that Nassau Street is melting, it's too hot even to go swimming, and that there's no relief in sight.

GARDEN
Mondo Cane (through Tuesday). Illiterately translated, "Mondo Cane" means "everything has gone to the dogs." This is the way writer and producer Gualtiero Jacopetti views the world through dun-colored glasses.

To back up his contentious contention, Jacopetti has piled high a rompost heap of very good and very bad film clips from a 'round-the-globe' study of the repulsive. The result eminently qualifies him for the title of "least fun-loving Rover Boy of 1962-63."

Take dogs, for instance. Like them? So do the people of Formosa. They pick out the most appetizing puppy directly from one of the cages in a restaurant. Then they sit happily down to flow in the most direct sense of the word.

Or, do you respect and admire beautiful women? Not by the same standards as the simple, happy islanders of Tabar, you don't. They honor their most attractive debutantes by shutting them up in narrow, wooden cages, then stuff them with tapioca until they weigh in at 265 minimum and generously offer them as wives to the archipelagic equivalent of Mayor and Borough Council.

There are 27 episodes of similarly cheerful intelligence which serve as ingredients for Mr. Jacopetti's rancid stew. To be sure, some of them are leerily provocative, some are clinically interesting, a few of them sometimes funny.

If you have nerves of steel and a stomach of iron, you'll probably want to see "Mondo Cane." But please don't take your dog.

ident, hopes to salvage the effort put into the would-be production by scheduling later performance dates or giving public readings.

The actors included Julia Fremon, Sherry Richardson, Mr. Ellis, Shirley Kauffman, Isobel Abrison, Thomas Queenan, Mark Ritts and Esther Usiskin. Lewis Morton was the technical director and Cornelia Rosmini the stage manager.

PERFORMANCES PLANNED
By Opera Association. Parts of "Marriage of Figaro," "Aida" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be presented by the Princeton Opera Association in Cadwallader Park, Trenton, Monday, August 5 and 12. The performances will be part of regular orchestral concerts, which begin at 7 p.m.

This Monday's production will be Act II of "Marriage of Figaro," with Stuart Duncan as narrator and Stephen Pruslin accompanying the group on the piano. Igor Chirliagov, conductor of the Baltimore Civic Opera Company for 11 years, is serving as conductor and artistic director.

"Figaro's" cast includes Robert Schaefer, Janice Kurz, Clare Eberhard, Woodward Waesche, Joyce Gill, Colin Lancaster, Nancy Jackson, William Shores and James Gill. Virginia Cole will sing the title role in "Aida" on August 12, with Nancy Jackson playing Amneris. Singers in "Cavalleria Rusticana," scheduled for the same date, are Trudy B. Williams, Valero Maccioni, Joyce Gill and Nancy Jackson. The first scene of Act II of "Aida" and Act II of "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be presented.

OTHER PAPERS in Princeton will run your classified advertising for half-price, or free of charge if your for sale ads don't sell. In TOWN TOPICS, you'll find more ads and better results.

THE WEEK AT THE NEW STRAND

THURS.-SAT., Aug. 1-3, a film with high intellectual appeal, Jean-Paul Sartre's NO EXIT. Even though Sartre is a philosopher, he still writes a pretty good play, and in fact some people think that as a philosopher he makes a good dramatist. As a play, NO EXIT was no closet drama, and we can only hope that as a film it is not in camera as well as with camera. NO EXIT runs 87 tense minutes, and to lighten the evening we have chosen to play with a British comedy called FOLLOW A STAR, which was recommended to us (by Sam Kallikak).

THURS. - FRI., 8:30, NO EXIT first, to provide an exit for those who don't want their evening lightened.

SAT., NO EXIT at 7 and 10:15, STAR at 8:30 only.

PANCHALI, the first part of Satyajit Ray's Indian Trilogy, has won such universal acclaim that we can add nothing beyond the fact that it will play at this theater.

SUN. - TUES., Aug. 4-6
SUN., 7 & 9 P.M.; MON. - TUES., 8:30.

Like an indulgent parent with a delinquent child, we are always ready to give Hollywood another chance. This time it's FIVE FINGER EXERCISE, based on the Broadway play, with what fidelity we have yet to discover. Sam Kallikak says, any picture with Rosalind Russell, Jack Hawkins and Max Schell can't be too bad.

WED., Aug. 7, 7 and 9 P.M.

IT'S NEW To Us

IT'S N.E.A.T.
Always on Sunday. The new N.E.A.T. Delicatessen at 242 Nassau is indeed n.e.a.t., but its name does more than define it. The name serves to remind customers that the shop is owned by a family: two sisters, Elizabeth and Angelina, and the brothers-in-law, Nicholas and Thomas. Try it on your anagram-blender some time.

The last names, Cifelli and Bocciafuso, tell you right away that the new shop is owned by people who have been in Princeton for a long, long time.

The specialty of the house, so to speak, is the fine Italian pastry made for the N.E.A.T. in New Brunswick, and delivered just in time for your morning coffee each Sunday. Buns filled with cherry, apple or blueberry, or filled and crusted with raisins—how about that to start the week? Or a crumb cake that crumbles richly in your hand while you lift the cup of coffee? Well!

On the Italian side, there are the spudelles, as light and flaky as a Danish pastry, made in papery layers formed in the shape of a plump scallop shell. A custard-like fillings is inside. A smooth, creamy cheese sprinkled with chocolate bits has been wrapped in a circle of thin pastry, making an elongated roll about five inches long. Sometimes these are varied, just for fun: there may be a melon strip across the top, or citrus fruit, or black chocolate decorations sprinkled on the thin crust. The name? French canolis.

These are breakfast pastries, by the way, and although they may sound rich, they are not sweet, like the N.E.A.T.'s eclairs filled with custard.

Apple turnovers, large or small (individual size, or family size) could be popped into a warm oven for a minute after you get them home. The baha, with its rich rum filling, needs no oven at all.

We liked the looks of the pastiches, the custard-filled cup made of cake batter, and the butterfly, a cream filled cake with two wedge slices perched on top of the fluted filling to imitate butterfly wings. Pineapple tarts are full of fluted whipped cream, with a pineapple slice ringing the top.

If you want a special cake, for a birthday or a party, N.E.A.T. will order one for you. We saw a regal strawberry shortcake, much too beautiful to eat.

Early Sunday morning is the best time, by the way: the pastries are snapped up as fast as the Sunday New York "Times" out in front of the shop.

Italian specialties are in the cold cuts, case, too. Cappelletti, Italian salami, prascittini ham rolled in finely ground black pepper, and from other cuisines, the Dutch loaf that looks like meat-loaf, turkey loaf, and a big cold roast beef.

Take-out sandwiches are big and good, with a choice of white bread, round roll, brown bread. Stop by some Tuesday and order a sausage sandwich with hot tomato gravy, or on Thursday for a meat-ball sandwich on a hard roll, this too with hot tomato gravy. (We use "hot" here in the sense of heat, not in the sense of peppery, although neither of these sandwiches is bland.)

On Fridays, it's egg salad and tuna fish on the sandwich menu, and every single day, it's hoagies, either 30 cent or 50 cent size. We're after that 50-cent one... what a lunch, with a soft drink on the side!

With the sandwich, you get tomato, lettuce, mayonnaise if you wish. You needn't order ahead of time, even for the hot sandwiches because everything is right at hand.

The N.E.A.T. is open every day from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., until 1 on Sundays.

REST AND CHEER

Shave With A Sword

Ordinary, run-of-the-blade mortals might think it odd to buy razor blades in a garden market, but people who are "in" immediately think of Wilkinson and say "of course" without raising a whisker.

The Wilkinson razor blade is available in Princeton at John Obal's Garden Market on Alexander Street because the English firm only gives its razor blade franchise to stores that already carry its various other blades.

For example, swords. Wilkinson has been making swords (real, business swords) for generations. Obal hasn't any of these. But the market does have pruners, edging and hedge shears in the same honed, sharp steel.

Hence the razor blades. These are 75 cents for five, and they give 15 to 20 shaves per blade. Some can scrape up 25 shaves per blade. Scots, no doubt.

in Washington Crossing, New Jersey, on a lofty bluff overlooking grassy lawns that seem to lead right to the Delaware River.

The Ogden is on River Road about 100 yards south of the bridge intersection. Formerly a comfortable private home in the Dutch cottage style, it still looks just that way, even inside the wide front door. It is owned and operated by the three Ogden sisters, Mary B., Louise and Grace, all of whom are graduate nurses, and it is licensed by the New Jersey Department of Institutions and Agencies.

But here the institutional stops. For this is a home, in the real sense that must have been experienced by the elderly guests when they had homes of their own. There is a wall-to-wall carpet in the front hall, and all the way up the stairs, giving comfort and sure footing. The large dining-room, where the guests have breakfast together, has one large, handsome mahogany table. An

Oriental rug is on the floor, and a gleaming old silver tea and coffee service is on the mahogany buffet.

The Ogden sisters make a conscious effort to use furnishings and accessories from earlier days to make their guests feel at home. Rows of amber, cranberry and blue glass objects catch the sunlight that comes through the long, narrow window next to the front door.

In the upstairs hall, with its full carpeting and quiet meditation wallpaper, there is a tremendous china cabinet holding such treasures as a pair of bisque figurines, porcelain lattice fruit compotes and hand-painted berry bowls.

For the supper that each guest has on a tray in her room, the home has a large Tole tray, set with sterling silver, a linen napkin in a silver ring, fine china such as any housewife might use for guests, and perhaps a nob-glass sugar-and-cream. Next week, the sugar and creamer may be—who knows? Cranberry glass, perhaps, or gold-bordered Lenox.

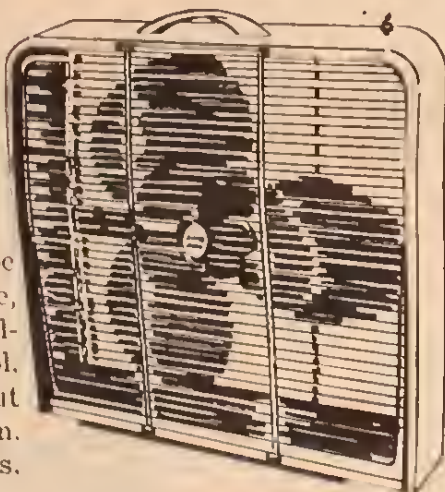

There are private and semi-private rooms, each one with a floral paper that is cheerful without being distracting. One room has a fine black walnut chest, another has an early Victorian chest, probably maple. Chairs may have needle-point seals to enhance a curving Victorian line.

Beds and night-stands are the hospital style required by state inspectors, and the bedroom floors are terrazzo vinyl, again to meet state specifications. But an ivory jacquard spread covers the hospital bed, and blue-scalloped percale sheets cover the mattress, and there are embroidered white ruffled curtains at the windows (to give way, when fall comes, to ball-fringe drapes).

Perhaps the pleasantest touch of home is the little maple drop-leaf table, set square against the window of the tiny upstairs sitting-room. Here, two of the guests have their breakfast each morning, looking out over the lawns to watch the water-skiing on the Delaware through mother-of-pearl opera glasses on the writing desk behind the table. The Ogden Nursing Home can accommodate 11 guests, and sometimes there is a waiting list. Special diets are provided, in any variety the doctor orders. There are seven staff members, and a nurse on duty all night. The home has been in operation since 1955.

"Unfortunate and Shameful,"
To the Editor of Town Topics:
For several weeks now I have read of the frustration and humiliation suffered by a Negro couple in their attempt to rent an apartment in town. Ordinarily, a story of such gross injustice produces several offers of assistance from new paper readers. This has not happened as yet. For apparently there is no landlord who feels he can go along with the current tide of long delayed progress in our country and come forward with an offer of decent housing at a reasonable price for two human beings for whom this gesture would be most meaningful.

It is unfortunate and shameful that in this clear situation where long-standing social wrongs were being righted by individuals who, I am certain, represent majority feelings in

Princeton that the ultimate control in the situation should pass so easily to a frenzied, fearful, violent, and most likely, minute minority of individuals. It is very hard for me to understand the violence which other white persons harbor toward Negroes to the extent that they are capable of making threatening phone calls. But it is even harder for me to understand how Negro citizens can contain the anger produced by the humiliation of being unable to work and live where they wish to. The handwriting of change is in very large letters on the walls of discrimination which still exist in our progressive town. Is it possible that with our excellent education we have not yet learned to read? (Mrs.) JOAN LEVINSON

Lack of National Pride.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
During World War II, theaters throughout the United States played the National Anthem before each show. This is no longer the custom in our country.

However, on June 26, the American flag was taken from the closet of the Garden Theater and placed on the stage. Along with it, the Star Spangled Banner was played prior to the opening of the show.

What was the occasion? The presentation of a film entitled "The Longest Day" which deals with the allied invasion of Normandy Beach. As projectionist for this film, I conferred with the manager of the film. We both agreed that this would enhance the opening of the film, instill a feeling of national pride, and make the presentation of the film complete.

Now, for the purpose of this letter. On Monday, July 15, I was shocked to see that only four people out of the entire audience stood for the National Anthem. And three of the four were children not more than 12 years of age.

Is it necessary to flash a sign on the screen requesting everyone to stand for the National Anthem? If so, why? What has happened to our national pride today?

Report on the Eclipse.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
Your recent kind reference (Town Topics, July 18) to my various trips to observe total solar eclipses encourages me to report to you our success July 20.

Maine and the Province of Quebec were vexed with many scattered clouds and thunder-showers. Our very small party did not include our son, who with his family is in Boulder, Colorado until September.

We picked an observing point in Jackman, Maine, but less than half an hour before totality a drift of cirrus and cirrocumulus cloud moved across the sun, and it was necessary to chase blue sky by automobile on US Highway 201, running northerly.

After a quick run of a dozen miles, almost to the Canadian border, the car was parked on a shoulder of the mountain road with eight or ten minutes to spare. To avoid preliminary dazzle by the sun's glare, one can turn his back to the sun and watch his own shadow, facing around the instant that shadow disappears.

The first "diamond ring" was then spectacularly visible in clear blue sky, followed by 45 seconds of totality, with the feathery coronal streamers to upper left and lower right — a typical formation for the current condition of sunspot minimum. Then the second "diamond" as the moon moved off and the sun proper began to reappear, with the instantaneous disappearance of the streamers because of the illuminated air in front of them. I had seen the previous total eclipses of 1925, 1932, 1937, and 1945 — having failed in 1959 because of heavy continuous clouds from a worn-out hurricane. But I remember that on May 28, 1900, my mother showed me through a carefully smoked glass in Harrisburg, Penna., the partial phase of the solar eclipse which was being observed as total at Wadesboro, North Carolina, by a Princeton party led by Charles A. Young and having the youthful Henry Norris Russell as a member.

The Lucky Ones Will Die.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
President Kennedy made a fine presentation of the reasons why the Senate should ratify the atom test ban treaty, and appropriately credited the Eisenhower Administration as well as his own with the years of work which preceded the signing of the treaty.

The President properly described the treaty as a first step toward peace. It seems to me that we can both rejoice that the first step (subject to the U.S. Senate) is finally about to be taken, and be impatient for the second step. It also seems to me important to recognize that the second, third, etc. steps may not be so "easy" as the first one. The atom test ban treaty is almost a unique one in that no enforcement is necessary. Scientific methods to detect above-ground atomic tests have become very reliable.

But as we move on (as we must eventually, if mankind's continued existence is to be secured) to arms control and disarmament, reliable inspection will be essential. And what use will reliable inspection be unless backed up by enforcement machinery, i.e. police? And what would prevent a world police force from becoming a tyranny unless regulated by a world legislature and by an administrative body, plus world courts?

In short, peace at the world level (as at all other levels) requires the presence of government. Until we face up to the fact that we must have the institutions of government (restricted in powers to the peaceful settlement of international disputes) at the world level, war will remain mankind's gruesome companion. As President Kennedy quoted Premier Khrushchev (of all people), it is likely that 300,000,000 people will be killed in the first hour of a thermonuclear war — and they will be the lucky ones.

GOING BACK in Town Topics

FIVE YEARS AGO
July 31, 1958. With the rest of the nation, Princeton waited apprehensively for repercussions from President Eisenhower's decision to send troops into troubled Lebanon. Two Princeton area residents, Seaman Ronald E. Novak, USN, of 232 Washington Road, and Marine Corporal John Heacock, Laurel Avenue, Kingston, took part in landing operations on the shores of the middle eastern country.

On the home front, a man-in-the-street survey by Princeton Research Service made 24 hours after the Marines' landing found 73% in favor of the President's action, 21% opposed and 6% without an opinion. TOWN TOPICS, comparing the situation to the outbreak of fighting in Korea eight summers earlier, said:

"Generally, Princetonians tended to endorse President Eisenhower's bludgeoning move in calling the Communists' bluff. They expressed a belief that the step will bring positive peace results without the waste of a second Korea. With World War II much less fresh in their minds than it was eight years ago, they indulged in no scare buying, reasoning further that the threat of nuclear war should mean no war at all."

On the business scene, Farr Hardware, established in 1886 and at its 138 Nassau Street location since 1912, was making news as it reduced the height of its building from four stories to two and undertook major renovations inside and out. Renwick's concerned itself solely with interior changes, realigning counter, booths and tables and decorating "nonobjective abstract walls in four pastel colors."

Princeton Municipal Improvement sold the Princeton Recreation Center (which it had bought in the mid-thirties as the old Arcade Theatre) to David and Lillian Burroughs to conform to Operation Nassau (see "Fifteen Years Ago" below), down came the old neon sign featuring the little man who never missed a strike.

Elsewhere around town Mercer County's Road Department had at long last begun installation of the much-needed traffic lights at the corner of Washington and College Roads. And the Pennsylvania Railroad boosted sagging revenues by installing parking meters on all lots at Princeton Junction. . . non-conformist commuters dotted the surrounding countryside with cars to escape the new levy or measured the crossbar for potential ability to drive small compacts underneath.

TEN YEARS AGO
July 27, 1953. The Eisenhower administration, buffeted by the tides and currents of the Republicans' first year in power in more than two decades, was the target of this jibe reported from Washington by Democratic Congressman Charles R. Howell.

"The latest dance being taught here is the Republican Glide. Directions: Take one step forward, then two steps backward, hesitate, then sidestep."

On the hot summer scene, a seven-year old girl from North Harrison Street was admitted to Princeton Hospital with 1953's first case of polio. Parents, who had several years to wait before the work of Dr. Jonas Salk replaced fear with simple shots, hoped this would not be a "bad polio year."

The Lions Club planned its annual summer outing under guidance of President Chester A. Page. Dr. Paul R. Chesebrough, headmaster of The Hun School, announced that its new year in September would be marked by its largest enrollment in 15 years.

Lt. Dresden Morse, son of Prof. Marston Morse of 40 Battle Road, won the Bronze Star for bravery in action in Korea. Henry W. Jeffers, President of Walker-Gordon Laboratory and a pioneer in scientifically-modified milk, died at 82. The Gallup and Robinson roster in one of the summer softball leagues was bolstered by the addition of one Dick Kazmaier.

Democrats were at work on behalf of a political unknown seeking the Governorship, Robert B. Meyner. . . Princetonians opposed to the expenditure of $206,000 for the purchase of land on which to create three-off-street parking lots were busy obtaining signatures to force a November referendum on the proposal. . . already set for a test of public opinion on the ballot were the legalization of bingo and raffles, and the question of consolidation of Princeton Borough and Township.

In a summer as unpleasantly sticky as the one ten years earlier in 1943 or ten years later in 1963, TOWN TOPICS noted that a reader had "a motto for the hot weather which he is willing to loan to all comers as a bit of personal philosophy. He thinks its application now and then might solve many a problem in a hurried, frequently over-heated world."

"It's better to have loafed and lost than never to have loafed at all."

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO
July 29, 1948. "Operation Nassau," was launched by the Princeton Civic Association at a joint dinner of the Lions and Rotary Clubs, with Dilman M. K. Smith and Julian Garnsey at the helm. The target: unifying the color design of the town's business section, following colonial-style architecture when store-front renovations were planned and eliminating stainless steel, neon lights and "their blatant eye-catching accessories."

Consultation without charge would be made available to all merchants and property owners planning physical changes on their buildings. "The Civic

Strongboxes Yield $720

Another strong argument for putting one's savings in the bank and not personal strongboxes was advanced last week when two brothers here found themselves out $720.

Raymond Fishane of 50 Fisher Avenue told Borough Police that sometime between 8 a.m. and 4:30 in the afternoon last Thursday, someone had forced open the cellar door of his house, ransacked it, and departed with $720. Approximately $20 in change, he said, was taken from a strongbox in his room. The remainder was taken from another strongbox in a room occupied by his brother, William.

Detective Arthur Gallant is investigating.

Association," reported TOWN TOPICS, "will seek to unify and harmonize color to the end that the business section may progress commercially while retaining its ties with Princeton's charming colonial past." The story concluded:

"The plan had all the aspects of something for nothing, an eye-catcher itself in this day of ever-dwindling dollar values. If enthusiasm replaces lethargy and cooperation is substituted for a misguided form of rugged individualism, Princeton would indeed have something extremely worthwhile for exactly nothing."

In the same issue, TOWN TOPICS bemoaned the fact that the cost of food had hit a new all-time high. Meat and eggs paced the trend, with meat snaring 13% higher than it had been a year ago. The concluding note reported: "In short — and the distance it would stretch was getting shorter — the dollar that was worth 100 cents in 1939 would only buy 43 cents worth of food today."

Random notes on the 1948 scene: builder William R. Matthews, who at age 14 made $3.75 for a 54-hour week and rose to found the construction firm that has contributed more to the appearance of the Princeton scene than any other, was Man of the Week. . . reports of flying saucers were rife, with one man claiming to have seen "a wingless craft spurting flame like a Buck Rogers rocket ship" . . . from Italy came the romantic word that Livingston Pomeroy, 33-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene C. Pomeroy of Hopewell, now in Rome as a writer after a war-time career with the OSS, was involved in a forthcoming duel. The weapons — rapier; the cause: a beautiful woman whose virtue Pomeroy felt had been questioned.

A young man who put his dream on wheels, pictured with his first automobile in 1896. That dream was to produce a light-weight, inexpensive automobile that the ordinary family could afford, and its fulfillment put the world on wheels. Mr. Ford, born 100 years ago this July 30, was 33 when he posed in his Sunday finest, sporting a proud mustache, with the car he built in a rented workshop in Detroit.

BIRTHS

Twenty-two Born. The stork report for Princeton Hospital last week shows 22 newborn, 16 were girls.

Daughters were born to Mr.

BRIDGE HIT AGAIN

Woman Is Injured. In this era of change, one thing is constant, the Princeton-Kingston Bridge is sure to get hit at least once a month.

The most recent accident there — the 12th this year — occurred during Sunday afternoon's rainstorm. A victim of the wet and slippery roadway, Joseph O. Fox, 40 of Uniondale, N.Y., traveling east, slid into the path of a car operated by Miss Mary Burns, 18, of Southfield Road, Cranbury. The two cars met head on, police said.

Mrs. Ann Burns, 52, was seriously injured. She received lacerations of the forehead and fractured ribs and was admitted to Princeton Hospital. Slightly injured in the mishap was Ann Fox, 11, and Amanda Hendrick, 31, of Newark. Charlotte Kornegay, 9, of 302 John Street, received a fractured jaw, lacerations and bruises. Police issued no summonses.

FOUR ARE FINED

In Borough Court. Four Princeton area motorists were fined Monday by Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr.

The largest fine, $25, was levied against Val T. Fischer, 17, Alexander Road, Princeton Junction, for careless driving in other violations. Raymond Van Arsdale, 36 Blackwell Avenue, Hopewell, paid $15 for speeding. Charles L. Graham, 36, Franklin Park, $15, illegal use of plates; and John L. Schenck, 17, Cranbury, $10, no headlights. All pleaded guilty. Continued on Page 16

NEGRO LAUDS PRINCETON

In Letter on His Country.

A Negro war veteran and paraplegic, a resident of Princeton during the years of the Second World War, has paid tribute to this community for the training he received here, training he says that helped him in his struggles against racial intolerance and bigotry he has encountered elsewhere.

The New York Amsterdam News published "A Letter on My Country" by Lt. William H. Edwards now of New York City, "in the hope that those who may have never given it any thought may come to better understand what effects some of the imperfections of our democracy has on the Negro."

Of his first five years which were spent in New York City, where he was born 25 years ago, Lt. Edwards remembers little. His first real recollection of childhood was at Princeton. "They were wonderful years," he wrote.

His brief time here was to have a profound influence on Lt. Edwards. Many years later, after private school and college, where he recalled he could make friends easily without regard to race or color, he began to realize that some people would enter relationships with inflexible, predetermined judgments.

"Thanked My God," Commenting on this new awareness, Lt. Edwards said that he tried to break down these judgments and not accept them as his own . . . to become friends not as a Negro hut as an American. "I thanked my God that I had such good training in Princeton," he wrote, "training that stopped me from closing my mind as so many in my neighborhood had done."

During those happy years in Princeton, he remembered how he and all his playmates were one gang. "We were all one: Bobby McClintock, the Irish-American red-head from down the street; Ritchie Hall, the fair-skinned Negro from around the corner; Jean, our tamboy scapegoat who was always the last to get picked; Phil, the white Protestant who lived around the corner from Albert Einstein; and me."

"Our parents never stopped us to say, 'don't . . . he's white, or black, or Catholic, or Protestant' and if they did, we never heard about it. We stuck together; we were friends. We ate at each others' houses, all of us went to Ball's candy store on allowance day, we climbed together in the crabapple orchard behind Jean's house and every Saturday we went to the Playhouse theatre for six cartoons and a western."

Lieut. Edwards' mother worked in a defense plant during the war. "Every morning, she huddled me off to school," he recalls, "and told me, 'be good and stay near Mrs. Hall's. I'll be home as early as possible.'" Mrs. Hall lives today, as she did then, at 169 John Street, and it was her husband, William P. Hall, who brought Lieut. Edwards' letter to TOWN TOPICS.

After the war, Lt. Edwards' father started to work for the United Nations and the family moved to New York. Thus, in 1946 the wonderful years at Princeton came to an end.

Faith Is Shaken. Since then, much has happened, of course. The events of recent months, Lt. Edwards writes, have "shaken my faith" in the country I once swore to defend. He asks, "Whatever happened to the land of the free and the home of the brave I remember from my childhood? Was I mistaken? Has America, the America I knew, changed?"

"I cried the night they showed the TV pictures of Birmingham, cried because I had lost a dream. I was in a foreign land. This couldn't be my country, not my people, not Americans."

"If war comes, any war, can I fight for my country? Should I defend what I cannot wholly believe in? And if the battle be between my country and my race? On whose side shall I cast my lot?"

Lt. Edwards ends his litany of troubled questions with this plea: That he never be forced to make that choice between country and race.

JOHN G. HIBBEN HONORED

Apartments Named For Him.

Lakeside Apartments, for University junior faculty on Lake Carnegie, have been renamed Hibben Apartments in memory of Princeton's 14th president, John Grier Hibben. His administration from 1917 to 1932 was marked by rapid growth in the physical and financial resources of the University.

Hibben Apartments, first occupied in the fall of 1961, cost over $1.5 million, covered by the $53 million capital gifts campaign. Another eight-story identical building is in the preliminary stage of development and will be erected west of Hibben Apartments on the north of the lake.

Ballard, Todd and Snihbe, New York architects, are designing the new building, having served the same function for Hibben Apartments. The contemporary design of tawny brick with white trim includes a private balcony for each apartment.

The erection of the buildings was necessitated by faculty expansion, an increasing number of married graduate students and a decreasing number of moderately-priced housing units following the rise in Princeton's population of commuters and research and industrial laboratory personnel.

During President Hibben's administration, 30 of the 72 buildings existing when he retired were erected, including the University Chapel, McCarter Theatre, Palmer Stadium, Baker Rink, and the quadrangles on the west side of the campus. Student enrollment increased from 1500 to 2400 during the 20-year period, and faculty from 160 to over 250.

The school of architecture and the school of public and international affairs were created during his administration, and the school of engineering was organized from existing departments. Endowment increased five-fold.

President Hibben introduced the "four-course" plan of upper class work in 1923, emphasizing independent study and comprehensive examinations. His name has been given to the Chapel nave, the Hibben Loan Fund, Hibben Memorial Scholarships, a street in Princeton, a mineral and a Liberty ship in World War II.

Mr. Dillard will be a visiting lecturer with the rank of professor in the English Department during the coming academic year. He will conduct a series of seminars for students enrolled in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, and will be a visiting senior fellow of the Council of the Humanities. A native of Collinsville, Ill., Mr. Dillard received a B.A. degree from the University of Illinois in 1927 and studied for two years at Harvard University. In 1939, he was a Nieman Fellow at Harvard.

SHOTS TO BE GIVEN

At Hospital's Polio Clinic. Tuesday from 4 to 5 has been set aside by Princeton Hospital for its major polio clinic of the summer. According to reports from the National Foundation, polio is appearing again in some communities, and every family is urged to make sure that each member has received the basic protection of three Salk vaccine injections.

Since polio makes little distinction because of age, the National Foundation recommends that everyone should seek polio protection from his personal physician or from the various clinics which are available in Mercer County. All children entering school for the first time must have three injections before registering for classes in September.

Since timing of the injections is important, with the second to be given just a month after the first, those who have not had their inoculation may receive their initial injection at the August clinic and their second at the September clinic. The third of the series should be given six months after the second, according to physicians' recommendations, and a booster dose is advisable every two years.

QUESTIONS

What could cause cellulosic browning from wicking to the surface from the back? How can it be prevented? What is proper cleaning?

Cellulosic browning could be caused by more than one thing. One thing that could cause this would be detergent burn. This is where too much solution, in too strong a form, is applied to the rug. Best way to prevent something like this is to deal with a thoroughly reliable cleaner who has the experience and know-how.

Proper cleaning depends on the rug, but all rugs should be vacuumed at least once a week and carpet swept in between if traffic demands.

Vacuuming a good rug every day will not hurt it. It will only help to keep the imbedded dirt out of the rug. This dirt tends to wear out a rug because the grit breaks off the fibers from the base of the rug.

(This is the first of a series of four articles on Princeton's football prospects for 1963.)

Many Gaps to Fill. A year ago, Princeton began the football season with very little in the way of rebuilding to do and yet barely topped the 500 mark at the end of November. With the reconstruction job at least twice as big this fall, it may take a lot of doing to stay ahead of the tell-tale break-even point in 1963.

Twelve months ago, the coaching staff was confronted by a pleasant set of statistics on the depth chart: only 11 lettermen had graduated and of these, only four were regulars. The backfield was scheduled to return intact.

If in the face of such a wealth of veteran material, Princeton did no better than tie for third in the Ivy League with a 4-3 mark and finish 5-4 on the season, what are the prospects in the face of loss of 18 lettermen, including eight starters and the entire backfield?

A realistic look at the situation shows why pre-season predictions that the Tigers will do well to top second division in the final Ivy standings may be all too accurate from a Princeton point of view. Defending champion Dartmouth, Harvard, Cornell and Columbia are all figured to be stronger than the Orange and Black in the race that will start in late September.

Every Position Hard Hit. In contrast to 1962, when only two positions (end and center) were markedly thinned out by graduation, one or more key players will be missing this season from every spot in the lineup. In three cases (center, quarterback and wingback), only one man picked up his diploma last June, but the replacement problems are nonetheless large.

Biggest task, of course, is to replace John Henrich, the burly field general who took his place with George Chandler and Jack Sapoch as quarterbacks who earned starting positions in the first game of their sophomore years and ran the team for three seasons. Another major gap to fill is at center, where no solid two-way player has been available to Princeton since Frank Szevetez graduated three years ago.

There are other problems up front, either in the form of positions weakened at the reserve level or in the need for starters. As noted, the backfield must be rebuilt from scratch, and must, if the Tigers are to do well this season, exceed last year's veteran quarter in output.

The unit that Captain Dan Terpack headed never did measure up to what appeared to be its potential. The air attack was particularly weak—an average of less than 70 yards per game and the incredibly small number of two touchdown passes completed in a nine-game season.

With eight starters among the graduates, the Princeton holdovers consist only of both tackles (Ed Costello and Captain Bill Guedel) and end Bill Howard. The gaps, accordingly, are high in number, and several valuable reserves are also included among the 18 lettermen who departed with the class of 1963.

By positions, these are the vacancies:

Ends: Barry Schuman, a three-year letterman who would have seen more action had it not been for chronic injuries. Dan Phillips, a rangy replacement on the opposite side of the line, and Ron Rogers, who returned from service last fall and worked in well as something of a defensive specialist. Losses here are relatively light, and hopes are that the holdovers will fortify Princeton more strongly on the flanks than has been the case the last couple of years.

Tackles: Here, too, losses are not great, but a replacement problem of some size was created by the graduation of Stan Schinker, Arlyn Lichtardt, and Bill Wright. Lichtardt saw more action—well over a third of the total plays—than any other reserve. All three were two-year lettermen and the experience they take with them will not be easily replaced.

Guards: Four lettermen lost, but only three saw action, inasmuch as the veteran Dick Lemkin was injured before the season began. Far and away the biggest gap to fill up front is that created by the departure of Tim Callard, 185-lb. All-Ivy selection. Rugged, mobile, smart, he was considered by the coaches Princeton's best two-way player at this position since World War II.

Tony DiVincenzo, who saw

Long-Range Forecast

A year ago, the Ivy League asked sportswriters and sportscasters from all 50 states to predict the order of finish of its eight football teams.

The bulk of those making forecasts were press box inhabitants from the east, who see the Ivies in action regularly, are familiar with the personnel and often talk to the coaches about their hopes and fears from week to week. All the "inside information" is available to them first hand.

The winner? Bill Leiser of the San Francisco Chronicle, who views Ivy League football a continent away.

more action last year than any other player on the team save John Henrich, leaves a big hole at the other guard position. Bill Barbour, a two-year letterman, will also be missed.

Center: Bob Burruss, who saw most of his action on offense, is the only player from this position who will not be back this season. Net result is the need to teach a new man the frequently tricky single wing assignments, which in recent seasons have resulted in occasional costly "ghost passes" from center.

Wingback: Captain Dan Terpack, the lone 1963 graduate at this position, averaged 4.9 yards per carry, blocked well and was above average on defense despite his small frame.

Quarterback: John Henrich, who clocked 941 plays out of the 1416 recorded last season to lead Princeton in this department, was a fine blocker, veteran field general and dependable linebacker. Second only to George Chandler at running a Tiger team in the post-war years, he leaves a gap too big for any possible replacement to fill in 1963.

Fullbacks: Bill Merlini's continued use ahead of Cosmo Iacavazzi in 1962 puzzled many Palmer Stadium observers, who are glad that it is not Cos who graduated. Dave Gouldin, place-kicking specialist, and Brad Urquhart, little-used in three years, are the other let-terms lost.

Tailbacks: Greg Riley, who played this position about a third of the time, and Dave Ibbeken were members of the Class of '63. Riley averaged 4.5 yards per carry and completed half his passes, but never seemed to make the big one. In addition, 10% of his attempts were intercepted.

No coach enjoys losing his entire starting backfield, particularly with a couple of tough opponents on the early portion of the schedule. Belief is, however, that if Princeton hopes to better its 5-4 mark of last year, the Tiger backfield quartet will have to exceed its predecessors in all-round ability before this season ends.

Next Week—The Sophomores

THREE GENERATIONS SET

For Old-Timers' Game. Baseball as Princeton has known it for the past 40 years will be on parade Friday, August 9, on Clarke Field. Players who have represented the town from the '20's to the '60's will be on hand for the occasion — some merely to ride in ancient automobiles assembled for atmosphere, others to take actual part in the Charleyhorse Classic.

A regrettable note will make its presence felt, despite the attendant air of frivolity. Summer baseball in Princeton died two years ago, with expiration of the Tri-County League, and if there is no revival, in the years to come there will one day be no Old-Timers' game for lack of Old Timers.

For 1963, however, Jim Hogarty is busy rounding up the Ancients whose capable play drew hundreds to the twilight games staged on Brokaw Field in the years before television or even radio were a strong counter-attraction. George Gallup 3d meanwhile is lining up the ancient automobiles, and owners who can assist are asked to notify him of their availability.

The Old Timers who will see action next week — those who played for Princeton in the decade before and after World War II — are under the managerial guidance of Jack Petrone. Petrone claims to have Jim Samuels, who wore Orange and Black from '32-'34, as his starting pitcher.

There is the possibility, however, that former commissioner B.E. Bergesen Jr. may persuade Samuels to repeat his "Disappearing Act" of 1962 as a build-up for next year's game. After Bergesen's advance publicity last summer repeatedly billed Samuels as the starting pitcher, the latter was too busy helping Alvin Dark catch the Dodgers to put in an appearance. Bergesen has been getting considerable mileage out of Samuels' no-show act ever since. "He might just try it again," Bergesen commented, "as a new way of winning the MVP award."

Petrone reports his squad will include these players who once brought championships to Princeton: Roger Yard, Tom Brophy, Johnny Ellsworth, Dick Coffee, Johnny Cuomo, Joe Friel, Don Opdycke, Jack Sweeney, Bob Kehoe, Jim Brown, Jim Carter, Bucky Cupples, Jim Kahny, Van Skillman, Jim Kopliner, Bill Gordon, Vern Khne, Charlie Perpetua, Warren Huff, George Sickle and Bus Simonson.

Tommy Petrone, former Hun star now at Gettysburg, will manage the youngest generation of players turning out for the occasion. They will include Gary Grover, Ray Cranston, Bruce Sandvik, Marty McGuinn, Vince McCord and Rob Swinnerton — the latter the winning pitcher in 1962.

EMR WIDENS LEAD

As Carbon Advances. Apparently stung by back-to-back defeats the week before, EMR retaliated with two victories last week in the Business Softball League to take a stranglehold on its first-place lead. At the same time, runner-up RCA was dropping a single contest to Educational Testing Service.

In the only other action, Columbian Carbon, which started strong only to falter in mid-season, won a pair, registering 9-2 and 9-8 triumphs over Scientific Electronics. This enabled Carbon to inch back to the 500 plateau with a 7-7 record.

Ted Cader worked both games for Columbian Carbon and was credited with both victories. In the first encounter with Western Electric, a Herculean, three-run shot by Stan Thune settled things early and Cader coasted to a 9-2 win.

The second contest, however, was a 9-8 squeaker which was not decided until the seventh inning defensive play at second when Bill McGarride base prevented two runs and drove in the tying and winning tallies. Hank Kuester's

BELEAGUED BATTERIES: Neither last-place Princeton Hospital nor second-division ERC is prospering this season in the Business Softball League but the competition between the two is nonetheless just as intense as at the start of the season. Pictured above are the batteries of the two teams prior to the start of their meeting last week. From left, Paul Wilkins, Hospital pitcher; Jerry Friedman, ERC catcher; Jerry Pasdan, ERC pitcher; and Edgar Riddick, Hospital catcher. ERC won. (Staff Photo)

Also, scoring nine runs in both its games, EMR went on to defeat Princeton Hospital, 9-7, and Accelerator, 9-6. Against Hospital, Ralph Deemel's three-run homer in the seventh broke a 6-6 tie, pitcher Paul Crea benefitting from the blow.

Crea was on the mound again as EMR handed Accelerator its seventh loss in 15 starts. Gene Worek was two-for-three for EMR.

Some all-tight defense and the hitting of Dom Glorinazzo, Bob Gorham and Chuck Schultz, who rapped out six hits among them was all that ETS needed to subdue second-place RCA, 6-1. Jack Dilworth was the winning pitcher.

TENNIS CLASSES SET

For Community Program. The Princeton Community Tennis Program has scheduled one more three-week instructional session for August 5 through 23, to be held at the University or Hun School courts.

Boys in third grade through high school and girls in fourth grade through high school are eligible to attend. There are also morning classes for women, and a Thursday evening class for teenagers and women. Registration for this final session may be made through Mrs. Eve Kraft, WA 4-4737.

The first six-week session was concluded with all students participating in a clinic conducted by Swarthmore College coach Ed Faulkner, and many are now playing in the Mercer County Junior Tennis Tournament, currently in progress on the University courts. Over 110 entries were received for the tournament from junior players in many parts of the

FORM PREVAILS

In Girls' Softball. In one regularly scheduled contest and in two make-up games, form prevailed last week in the Princeton Girls' Softball League. Thus once again, undefeated Thorne's increased its lead while winless ERC sank deeper in the standings.

The regularly-scheduled contest between ERC and third-place Princeton Hospital produced a pair of eye-opening statistics. Most impressive of these was Carol Osborne's feat of connecting for successive grand slams. In the third, Carol cleared the bases to break open a tight 3-2 battle and then came back to hit another in the fourth.

Jerry Meyers added another superlative by stealing seven bases during the encounter. In addition, she still had enough left to serve as the winning pitcher. As might be expected the score was inflated, Hospital coasting to a 21-6 victory. Dot Vorhees absorbed the loss.

In the completion of a protest game with the same Hospital team, ERC again demonstrated that when it loses it

Meanwhile Thorne's kept its record unsullied with a 6-2 verdict over Hospital. Pat Downing's two homers powered the winners to their eighth consecutive victory. Bee Baker and Gail Pedrick of Thorne's and Ruth Blackwell of Hospital were outstanding defensively.

KATZ'S TRIUMPH

In Mixed Doubles, Martin Katz and his wife, Dorothy, defeated Dr. Milton White and Miss Dede Shipway Saturday to win the Princeton YMCA Mixed Doubles Tournament. Scores were 6-2, 6-2.

Despite the 95-degree heat, the Katz's were a remarkably cool couple on the court. Playing a steady game, they were never seriously challenged by their opponents. Katz, in particular, won many points, displaying an outstanding performance at the net.

The final tournaments of the summer — the men's doubles and the women's doubles — are being played this week. Over 30 teams are entered in the men's event. The final matches in both tournaments will be held this weekend.

IT'S NIP AND TUCK

As Three Vie in PBA League. In the Police Baseball League last week, it was a case of the teams rich in victories getting richer and the poor getting poorer.

The three last place teams — Elks, Sportsmen and Hook & Ladder — all lost two games each. At the other end, Engine No. 3 won two and lost one to fall a half game behind and tie the Eagles for first place. The Eagles, meanwhile, were winning a pair. The Lions picked up some ground by winning two and dropping one, while third-place Engine No. 1 remained stationary on its 1-1 performance.

Finally, a much-postponed playoff of a protest game between the Lions and Engine No. 3 was held. The latter won it, 8-7, as Billy Brooks singled with the bases jammed in the last inning.

In their other two games, the Lions were upset-minded. They knocked off the league-leading Engine No. 3, 6-2, on the pitching of Mark Oberman and the hitting of George Tkacs, Bobby Moore and Bill Solotorsky. Then they turned on Engine No. 1, but, to pull it out, they had to score five runs in the bottom of the sixth to eke out a thrilling 11-10 victory.

The Eagles picked on two tailenders to force Engine No. 3 to share first place with them. Winless Hook & Ladder offered little resistance before it fell, 16-4. The Sportsmen, on the other hand, provided spirited competition, scoring five runs to the Eagles' seven. The difference between victory and defeat was the solid hitting of the Eagles' Hank Wilkinson, Jeff Frangos, John Richards and Craig Singer.

In other contests, Nick Arcaro collected 12 strikeouts to lead Post 76 to an 8-6 victory over the fading Elks. Engine No. 1 also defeated the Elks as Mark Anderson, Richard Meservy and Ronald McEwen each rapped out two hits apiece.

TO COMBINE SERVICES
In Trinity Parish. Worship services will be held at 9 and 11 this Sunday in All Saints'
Chapel, Van Dyke Road, for all members of the Trinity Parish.

The change will be in effect will be on vacation.

This Sunday, the Rev. Canon
Frederic Hood, Chancellor of

NEW ADDITION TO PRINCETON RESEARCH PARK: Architect's drawing of the new laboratory of the American Can Co. which will specialize in technical research and development. The research center on Harrison Street North, planned for completion early next year at a cost of more than $1,000,000, will be staffed by 60 scientists. It brings to 53 the total of organizations in the Princeton area engaged in developmental research in such diverse fields as outer space, nuclear energy, agriculture and engineering and market analysis.

BUSINESS In Princeton

GROUND DEDICATED

For American Can Co. Site. Dedication exercises were held Wednesday at the future location of the new American Can Company research laboratories in Princeton Research Park. Participating in the program at the 25 1/2-acre site on Harrison Street North were Gov. Richard J. Hughes, Township Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman, American Can Co. Chairman William C. Stolk and William F. May, the company's vice-president in charge of corporate planning and research.

Mr. Stolk announced that an eventual total of 60 scientists will work in the new laboratory. Their research will cover such areas as metal, paper, plastics and glass packaging, chemical production and new product groups that promise to extend the diversification of the company.

Construction of the 44,000-square-foot building, according to Mr. May, will cost more than $1,000,000 and will bring to about $18,000,000 the amount that American Can will spend annually on all types of research. At the outset, Mr. May said, there will be 25 scientists located at the new facility of the New York manufacturing corporation.

"Specifically, they will seek new knowledge in such areas as solid state physics, graphic arts, physical sciences, electrochemical phenomena, cellulose chemistry, high energy sources, permeation barriers, and adhesion characteristics of various materials," he added.

Mr. May said that Princeton was chosen as the location for the new research laboratories so that the company's research and development scientists will be able to work in a free academic community, isolated from the pressures of day-to-day business operation. The building is scheduled for completion by early 1964.

PROMOTIONS ANNOUNCED

By Opinion Research Corp. Announcement has been made by Opinion Research Corp. that Francis J. Lacy and Harry W. O'Neill have been appointed research directors.

Mr. Lacy has been a member of the ORC staff since 1959 and is a resident of Franklin Park. Mr. O'Neill, who lives in Highland Park, has been associated with the firm since 1962.

A PLANTATION?... near Princeton? It seems unbelievable, but when you first glimpse this pillared mansion, on an eminence shaded by mammoth trees, you suddenly understand why these old homes, built in the early 1800s, evoke such nostalgia. On five beautiful acres, protected by forty more deeded to the Audubon Society, this house offers (first floor): center hall, living room with fireplace, sitting room, library, full bath, and, of course, pantry, kitchen, laundry. (second floor): Suite, 3 bedrooms and bath; suite, 2 bedrooms and bath; suite, one room and bath. In addition, there is a big barn, with plenty of garage space, a beautiful swimming pool, your own small brook and a lovely view of Stony Brook itself. In short, here is an estate — on Princeton's most fabled road.
